Egyptian Ambassador to Hand Over King Tut's "Passport" to US Rep Carolyn Maloney for Safekeeping While King Tut Visits New York

For Planning Purposes Only, Not For Publication

For the first time in 30 years King Tut will be returning to New York on April 23. While King Tut visits New York, Egypt's Ambassador to the United States, H.E. Sameh Shoukry, has asked U.S. Representative Carolyn Maloney to accept King Tut's "passport" for safekeeping.

In a short ceremony at the Discovery Times Square Exposition immediately preceding the gala event celebrating the opening of the King Tut exhibit, Ambassador Shoukry will present King Tut's "passport" to Congresswoman Maloney. Congresswoman Maloney, a trusted friend of Egypt and a Member of Congress from Manhattan, has agreed to accept the "passport" of the young King, welcoming him back to New York.
